TOP 5 Haunted Locations in the World

2. ANCIENT RAM INN ENGLAND

Often dubbed as “The Most Haunted Building in England”, this inn was erected in the 12th century (possibly earlier) in Wotton-under-Edge, Gloucestershire.

It is believed to have been built atop the site of an ancient burial ground that dates back to 5 millennia.

It has a notoriously rich history of paranormal phenomenon.

Interestingly, the property sits directly on the intersection of two ley lines – one coming straight from Stonehenge.

Ley lines are alignments plotted between places such as ancient monuments that are thought to reside atop supernatural (or spiritual) energy spots.

There are at least 20 ghosts/spirits/entities that haunt the Ancient Ram Inn which have caused even the bravest to hastily leave in the middle of the night. Here are some examples:

The Bishop Room: this is said to be the most haunted room in the inn with very dark energy.

It is claimed that 8 people who slept in this room had to be exorcised. Rev John Yates, the former Bishop of Gloucester, said it was: "the most evil place I have ever had the misfortune to visit."

The Witch's Room: is haunted by a local townswoman who was burned at the stake with her black cat back in the 1500s. It is thought that she had taken refuge in the room before being captured and killed.

Also back in the 1500s, a former innkeeper's daughter was murdered by hanging in the attic and her ghost haunts this area of the inn. There are also sightings of a ghost rising up from the floor, and a female ghost hanging from the ceiling beam, along with something heavy being dragged.

The inn is also believed to have been the location of ritual sacrifices and satanic worship, for at the foot of a staircase many sacrificial objects have been found such as centuries-old skeletal remains of children, broken daggers, and a goat's hoof.

During renovations to the basement, a recent owner of the inn, John Humphries, discovered the bones of children who are believed to have been the victims of pagan ritual sacrifices. Until Mr. Humphries' death, he witnessed countless paranormal events and even suffered many attacks from dark entities.

One such attack which occurred back in 1968 involved that of Mr. Humphries being dragged out of bed. The culprit was a lustful demon called a succubus.

Both a succubus and incubus have haunted the room that Mr. Humphries had selected for his sleeping quarters.

An incubus incubus feeds on female hormones while he crawls in bed with them.

Reportedly, even the inn's kitchen is haunted, for an 18-year old man entered this room during a ghost hunt and was violently thrown against the wall by an unseen force.

A young couple also ran in terror from the kitchen when they saw the spirit of a woman come up through the kitchen floor.

Later on after this incident, it is recounted that a woman and her baby had been buried in that area.

Nearby, behind the bar that's adjoined to the kitchen, another young woman was also buried. And she presented herself to Mr. Humphries daughter as Elizabeth.

After innkeeper John Humphries' death in 2017, his daughter Caroline has taken over her father's legacy to preserve the highly historic building.

To this day, the Ancient Ram Inn remains a hotbed of supernatural activity and hoards of ghost hunters and paranormal enthusiasts make their way there – some even daring to spend the night and sleep in its haunted rooms.
